INTRODUCTION

Over 40 years ago, Kenneth and June Ashburner began planting trees in a field. As Kenneth's plant hunting expeditions gathered pace, so to did the collections of trees and plants that started to accumulate in the 'field'. Years of sympathetic and artistic development and landscaping have created the inspiring garden we enjoy today. In 1995, the garden was awarded National Collection status by Plant Heritage.

WHY SUPPORT US?

By becoming a 'Friend of Stone Lane Gardens' you help to support the work of maintaining and enhancing our important National Collections of Birch and Alder trees. You are also helping us provide an inspirational environment for garden and art lovers to visit.

As a Friend, you will be able to enjoy our garden throughout the year at no extra cost.

WHY IS OUR GARDEN SO IMPORTANT?

Our National Collections of Birch and Alder trees are:-

Important to scientists - as a living library of genetic material collected from all over the world.

Important to the public - educating children and adults about these attractive and pioneering trees.

Important for the future - as a source of trees for possible new breeding programmes as the climate changes .

Our sculpture exhibitions are important for educating children and adults about art, providing accessible art in an attractive, informal environment. We also provide an important local 'shop window' for west-country artists and designers.
